Foreword

THE SINGER EXULTS—by Salomon de le Selva

I BRING to you no common gift,
    Tho dream possessed and wonder-eyed;
I have but watched the hours sift
    Between my fingers open wide.

I never clutched the instant sands
    Of Time, have neither toiled nor spun,
And yet I come with richest hands
    Now toil and spinning time are done.

To the Class of 1926

IN your education at Simmons there are many diverse factors. Some of these are neatly enumerated in the College catalogue; others find a much less formal expression in the pages of this book; still others are to be sought in no written form whatever. The last are the casual and fugitive contacts, personal and cultural, which evade all record. However much you may try to measure and evaluate these various factors, you can never be wholly successful, for even in the most precise, there is a large imponderable element.

It is these imponderable elements which, in all probability, make up the greater part of your real education. It is these imponderable elements which defy systems of pedagogy, and yet they are the great builders of character. Energy, ambition, sympathy, love and understanding come far less from your courses prescribed by, or chosen from the Catalogue, than from these varying contacts with your fellow beings. Because they are imponderable, do not regard them lightly. By wise selection and cultivation they will unlock many of the secrets of life, otherwise impenetrable.

Dump Song

DOROTHY STAPLES, '23

Tune, "Solomon Levi"

Mount Holyoke has its campus,
And Wellesley has its lake,
And Smith has all the beauties
That art and cash can make;
But, thinking of their splendours,
Do not let your spirits slump,
For our Simmons has its famous,
Fetching, fascinating Dump.

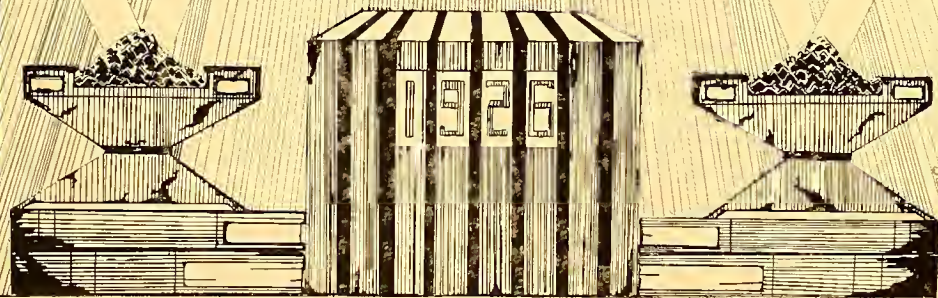

We grope thro' clouds of blinding dust;
We bump into a cow,
Beneath the sun's most scorching rays
Our heads we limply bow;
There's not a single shade-tree
Nor the vestige of a stump;
Yet we love our dirty, dusty,
Dingy, undulating Dump.

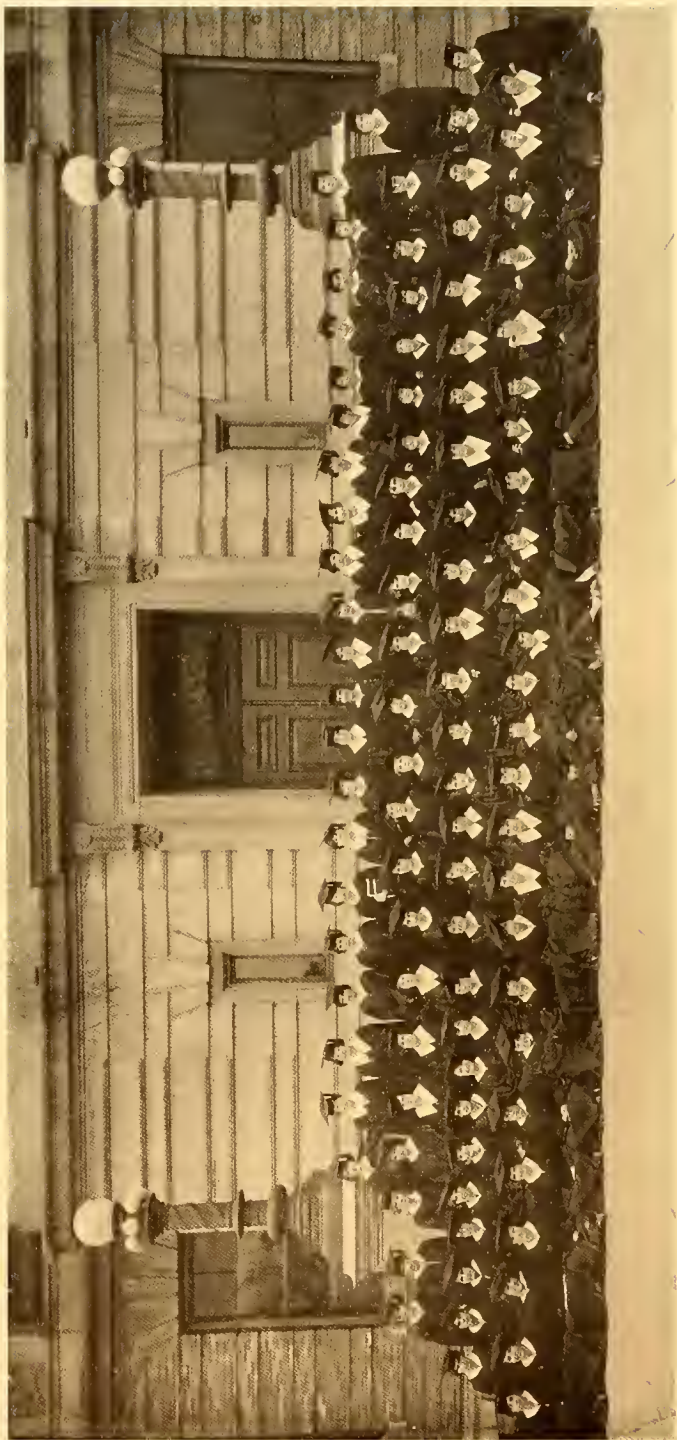

They talk of dang'rous journeys
In the frigid Arctic lands,
But we face all the perils of
Those brave exploring bands;
We beat our way thro' icy gales;
O'er snowy drifts we jump;
Even then thro' frozen lips we sigh,
"We love our College Dump."

Anon, perchance, you meet a chum
From some more ancient school;
She tells you of their shaded lawns,
Their courts and swimming pool;
And then you sweetly say, unless
You are an awful frump—
"But, my dear, I wouldn't swap them all
For our good ole Simmons Dump."

Honorary Members

MR. SUTCLIFFE

MISS BOWLER

DR. VARRELL

RUTH ADAMS

Ruth is one of those charming young ladies who never seem to study and yet manage to pass every exam successfully, if not "magna cum laude." Ruth has other more important things to take up her time than mere studies, such as telephone calls, clothes, cigarettes, dates, etc. Her movements are leisurely, unhurried. Nothing can ruffle her calm serenity but excessive noise—quietude is one of her dearest hobbies. Cheer up, Ruth. Who knows but the whole world may some day be stricken dumb.

Dana Hall, Smith College

LOUISE ALDRICH

"Dickie"

To mere acquaintances Louise is one of our most capable and brilliant members, and to her friends her everready sympathy and quick wit make her a source of inspiration. With all her own varied activities, she always finds time for the interests of those around her. No one else can ever fill the place she holds in the hearts of her friends.

JANICE ALLARDICE

"Jay"

Jay is one of our gayer classmates. She's always ready for a good time and you can always be sure that she'll be a peach of a sport about everything. Jay has caused South Hall much worry all the year, due to its attempt to card-catalogue her many admirers. In short, we don't see much of her of an evening. And then often we hear her rattling a Remington and preaching Commercial Law and we are forced to the realization that we have a secretary in our midst.

117 Pearl Street, Clinton, Massachusetts
Clinton High School
Secretarial

Sophomore May Day; Junior Welcoming Committee; Fire Chief, South Hall (4).

FREDERICKA ALLEN

"Freddie"

"Freddie is the epitome of the unexpected. When her chin reaches a tilt of twenty-five degrees we prepare to be surprised. We can picture her a children's librarian a few years from now answering the breathless question, "What happened to the princess next?" But then—"Freddie" always does the unexpected!

Sewickley, Pennsylvania
Sewickley High School

Sophomore May Day (2); Glee Club (4).

LOIS ALLEN

"Lo"

When it comes to taking care of infants—or Kentucky Mountaineers, Lo is right there. She aspires to welfare work, proving that after nineteen years she is still an idealist and ready to work out her theories.

17 Crane Street, Danvers, Massachusetts
Holtan High School

MARTHA ANDREWS

Her policy is "first comes work and then comes play," for although she enjoys a good time, she never lets her lessons suffer. Most of her good times seem to be in Worcester. Wonder what the attraction is! She is one of the two members of our class who have an unbroken record for going home every week end of the four years.

Usher Junior Alumnae Conference (3); Waitress Alumnae Luncheon (3).

THELMA ANDREWS

"Shelly"

"Shelly" is that demure, illusive one who can listen to jokes, and laugh till the tears flow. She likes and dislikes with decided emphasis. She hates to be called "a plump little girl;" she loves prunes, and good orchestras.

At Simmons, she has learned many things:—to be a first rate secretary, not to be disillusioned by mannish fur coats, to remember license plate numbers, and to appreciate poetry.

Glenwood Park, Erie, Pennsylvania
Highland Hall
Secretarial

VIOLET ARONSON

"Vi"

Vi has that rare quality of being able to bring order out of the most hopeless chaos. Many are the messes that less systematic and efficient members of the Mic Board have dumped despairingly on her desk and then returned to find them all neatly straightened out, intelligibly arranged. The fame of her business ability has reached beyond the narrow confines of Simmons and one of our prouder moments was that in which we and the Governor of the Green Mountain State conversed intimately about her virtues as a secretary.

ELIZABETH BAKER

"Betty"

No matter how little mail there is, Betty always seems to get plenty, even if it is only "Bills." She's seldom to be seen around here in the daytime, for she's trying to get the Black Sheep to reform, and at night, well, maybe she does the same thing, then. At least there are few nights that she sits up with her radio singing "all alone."

MARION BAKER

Running Musical Association and keeping the morals of Longwood House straight, added to the hectic life of teaching in Settlement classes and strange High Schools, keeps Marion busy. We feel sure that all these multitudinous duties are sufficient explanation for her recent case of absent-mindedness.

MARGARET BARNES

Margaret's name will be writ large in the pages of our class history for her ability to write letters for Miss Wilson, which were not only read in class to show the rest of us how it should be done, but were returned with a minimum of the customary red fringe.

Also, there is nothing wrong with Margaret's neural system. She sits there calmly sipping in the pearls of wisdom dropping from the lips of her instructors, and then when she is called upon, can hand it back again concisely and promptly!

MARY BARNEY

"Mollie"

Take five foot two of pep, add plenty of originality and a dash of humor—that's Mollie-O. When it comes to horsemanship, she's way ahead of even the Prince of Wales, since his Highness has fallen off considerably in his riding lately. We recommend a checked suit.

MILDRED BARNEY

"Mike"

We of the Mic Board feel a peculiar kinship to Mike, since from our psych we learn that sympathy comes from a similarity of experience, and so our hearts certainly go out to her when we see her struggling with the accounts of Student Government. But her Academy record assures us of her success, and we offer up our homage as we make haste to hibernate, unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

MODENE BATES

One of our most attractive models in encyclopedias—fair hair and big blue eyes, and a brain just whirling with facts. Try to think of something that will stump Modene! She has an ever-ready answer—and what's more, it's always to the point. Her room is a gathering place for discussion on anything from shorthand to the double standard. In brief, if you want information, or an interesting chat, hail a green-clad figure bustling about South Hall and you may be sure of getting just what you are seeking.

PHYLLIS BEAN

Anyone who has seen (or heard) Phyllis falling off a radiator, or who has received a black eye from a collision with her, would never suspect that she is a full-fledged, dignified schoolma'am with two whole years of experience behind her. Just to prove it, visit her settlement class some night and see how she makes her pupils toe the mark. Phyllis has her hobby—winter sports—and she rides it hard; but whether she is snow-shoeing or making fudge for the bunch on fourth floor North, she is the same good sport.

LORNA BEARSE

Just the mention of her name suggests neatness and good-fellowship. Her words may come slowly but there's the quick smile and we know there's a lot of geniality behind that smile. If you start something, Lorna's right there with you and always welcome.

MARY RICE BEATTY

"Peter"

Mary, better known as Peter, is one of the most attractive and capable members of the class. She began her career at Simmons as a secretarial student and now finishes in the Household Economics School. The extraordinary thing about this is not the fact that she changed schools but that she did so well in both of them. Mary's influence and the weight her opinions carry are shown by the responsible offices she has held. She is one of the most respected, best liked, and most charming girls in college.

Chairman Track Day Costumes (1); Class Hockey (2); Chairman Class Ring Committee (2); Life Saving Corps (3); Dormitory Committee (3); Chairman of Junior Alumnae Conference (3); Group Leader (3); Student Government Representative and Chairman of Activities (4).

ETHEL BECKER

Ethel is one of those quiet girls with big brown eyes, at least that is her outward appearance. It has been reported however, by those who know, that she sometimes tears her hair desperately in typewriting class, and she can become quite eloquent on such subjects as her "favorite English Prof." She is training to be a secretary, but we believe she should have taken Household Ec to fit her for her life work.

334 North Fulton Avenue, Mt. Vernon, New York
Mount Veremon High School

PAULINE BECKER

"Polly"

Polly has dignity, poise and good taste—have you ever noticed how well she wears her clothes? Then, too, we have found during these last four years that Polly has dependable Ames, which, we are told, take one far toward happiness. We all wish it so, Polly!

MARY BLOOD

Stop, look, and listen! Blue eyes, wavy hair, pearly teeth and a complexion like Mary's are surely a gift of the gods, a reward of her familiar and nightly ministrations at their altars. Mary's good nature is so ever present that "Mary Sunshine" is a thing of reality to us. To the casual observer, she seems very quiet and reserved, but Third Floor South has found that her merry sense of humor is a direct antidote to its so-called Senior dignity.

RUTH BOURNE

"Boo"

One of the advantages of South Hall this year has been having Boo live with us, for with the gift of marcelling hair, she has gained a great reputation. But we understand that appointments must be made way ahead of time for her week-ends are crowded to overflowing!

10 Kensington Avenue, Bradford, Mass.

HELEN BREHMER

Helen is a loyal friend to those who know her well. She is not easy to become acquainted with, but the results are more than worth the effort. She is Hilda's right-hand man whenever and wherever there is a play going on. Helen, attired in overalls, is always to be found trying to maintain the equilibrium of the rocking scenery.

DOROTHY BUCKNER

"Dot"

A gale of laughter arose from the table—what? Oh, just Dottie telling another story with her usual vim and spirit. She always can make the funniest kind of a story out of what the rest of us have passed by without notice. This same spirit she puts into her studies as the girls of the Social Service School will agree. Always a steady worker and a loyal friend is Dot.

33 May Street, Worcester, Massachusetts

VIDA BUIST

"Vi"

Vida is so versatile that we probably could never enumerate all of her good qualities. Whether it be Student Government, dramatics, court reporting, a conference or a dance, her enthusiasm and wisdom will not fail. But it is as a true friend to us and to Simmons that she has taken her place among us.

MARGURITE BURNETT

"Dandy"

And "Dandy" is just the word that best describes her—good-looking, good form, good clothes, good line—a dandy good friend to both the male and female of the human race. The child also has brains and can use them. Pretty high praise for one female to hand another! "My dear, think nothing of it. The girl's quite all right."

17 East Sixth Street, Jamestown, New York
Jamestown High School

HELEN BURNS

Helen is another of those all round sharks, altho her particular field seems to be chemistry. That and being able to cast oil upon the stormy waters of settlement classes. You who have taught similar little urchins know what that means. Just one thing more, it's rumored that Helen loves her sleep and takes to her bed with all the joy of a duck sliding into its native pond.

19 Andrew Street, Lowell, Massachusetts

HARRIET BURR

Harriet didn't join our class until Sophomore year, but she has been a most loyal supporter of '26 ever since. Harriet is one of those girls who is always busy, but never too busy or in too much of a hurry to do a good turn for those around her. With this spirit she will surely make a success, whether her work be teaching or running a tea room.

HELEN BUTLER

When we think of Helen we have to use superlatives, for she is most willing, most helpful, and most sympathetic. We can always rely on Helen to help us out of any emergency, whether it be getting ready for a last minute date, making daisy chains, or handling Dramatics property.

109 Methuen Street, Lowell, Massachusetts

MIRIAM CAMP

"Campus"

We don't know whether it is Campus' vast knowledge of music or wide acquaintance in fraternities that has established her reputation as a good selector of orchestras, especially for Dramatics dances. At any rate, she certainly can choose. Besides her musical ability, we think the Sec. Department ought to know about Campus' poise. She didn't even move when the Sophomores at Ghost Walk poured a pitcher of water on her.

HYSORA CAPLAN

"Hy"

Hysora has one big fault. She is simply too clever! Fancy being artist, poet, musician, all at once, and doing everything with such dexterity. We simply cannot keep up with her. But, ah! That isn't all. Whence comes her charm with the popular sex? It must be that the "eyes" have it.

ELIZABETH CARROLL

"Betty"

A pair of black, snappy eyes, a ready smile, and a laugh, is Elizabeth. "Whether to take Court Reporting, or not to take Court Reporting"—that is her question. And every one else asks, "Why aren't Fords as capable of arriving at school at 8:45 as are the electrics?"

MARGARET HURLBUT CARROLL

"Margo"

Glance at the picture before you say you don't know Margaret. for if you look behind the disguise of the name, you will find that this is our little friend Margo. From the rate at which she walks, you know she comes from the wide open spaces of the West, and doubtless acquired this speedy gait from the training of five brothers. Her readiness to give attention to everyone's telephone calls is an indication of her genial spirit. Her romantic nature has not been subdued by the demands of the condensed secretarial course into which she was thrown last year after two years in an academic college.

ELIZABETH CLARKE

"Betty"

Rush, rush, rush—such a busy lady. At any time of the day or night you will find "Peasie" hurrying to catch up on a report or writing voluminous letters in the few remaining minutes before class or before a date. A bit of a procrastinator, yet somehow managing to just get there or finish it on time.

RUTH CLARK

"Tommy"

"Who's that coming down the street?" If she is doing the Charleston, it is Tommy. But dancing is not her only specialty, for she has had experience in a mail opening room and consequently has a little speech on the subject which she delivers weekly in office organization. Later she will accompany it with the banjo.

FRANCIS COFFEY

"Fran"

Piquant, vivacious, an inimitable mimic, she succeeds in driving away dull care and enlivening our gloomy hours. She has also a goodly amount of intelligent gray matter and has used it to her own and her friends' advantage. Has she not rated a few "A's" for herself and did she not throw out the life line to struggling young accountants? We'll say she did!

ESTHER COLAHAN

"Es"

"Es" with continued lack of success has attempted to convince us that a bookshop is her chief end in life, but somehow, when we picture her giving out the latest in fiction to the intellectually curious, we have to smile because fraternity pins and specials are rather suspicious bits of evidence after all.

MIRIAM COLODNY

"Oh, isn't that just precious!" What is? It doesn't matter for Miriam is in love with everything—except Accounts. Many are the times Miriam's plaintive wail of "Done your accounts?" has caused the milk of human kindness to flow in our veins to the extent of joining this little person in her hunt for the nickel necessary to restore the equilibrium of her trial balance. What little time remains after this nerve racking feat has been accomplished, Miriam devotes to mastering the intricacies of the Charleston. Despite the dampening effect of her room-mate's remark "you ought to see Adeline" we who saw her in the Pony Chorus know that when it comes to dancing Miriam can do just about anything.

"Peg"

She is always ready to explain everything to everybody. The information simply doesn't exist if Margaret can't give it to you or tell you how to find it. She will mention the best hotel in Honolulu with all the sangfroid of giving directions to South Station. You will learn also that Hawaii's about the most enchanting place on earth.

Some say that Margaret lives in Boston and goes to work in New York and it's just about correct. It's no wonder you've got the travel habit, Margaret. We can easily imagine you starting on your way to make a tour of the world. Good luck!

With all this, Hope continues to be one of our managerial geniuses.

LUCETTA COOK

"Cooky"

People like Cooky who have had the advantage of having been to another college keep us posted on the doings of the outside world. We were glad to hear about Iowa and get acquainted with Crinell and Ames.

Cooky is the one to whom we rush when we want our evening dresses renovated or a bunch of flowers arranged in the latest mode. Since we have discovered her fondness for candy and magazines, we know that our pangs of hunger, mental as well as physical, will be assuaged, if we go into her room. Furthermore, despite our ravages, we have always found ourselves heartily welcomed.

DOROTHY MARIE CORCORAN

"Dorsie"

"A true friend". That characterizes Dorsie better than anything we know. If you ever need anyone to cheer you up, sympathize with you or give you the best of advice, Dorsie always stands ready to do anything she can. Her sweet, cheerful smile and pleasing manner are outward expressions of a good disposition.

VERNA COX

When we think of Verna, we recall three things: (1) her Glee Club record, (2) her ability to argue even in Government class, and (3) acetone, and unto this last hangs a tale. We don't know what this stuff is, but from what we hear we don't think it is suitable for internal use, however unexpected the application might be! Anyway, ask Verna about it, and she will give you three uses for acetone.

MARCELLA CRONIN

"Marce"

Nature was certainly generous with Marcella, because she is an exception to that old idea that "beauty and brains are never found in the same person." The accounts room claims most of her time. Here, if she isn't doing her day-after-tomorrow's lesson, she is helping some of the rest of us do yesterday's work.

HELEN CROSSMAN

"Crossie"

Helen has "one" big interest, and next to this "one," Simmons is closest to her thoughts. She is always a hard, conscientious worker in everything that she does and has been most generous and faithful to the class in giving up much of her time to college activities. She really is just as busy as she appears. Hardly a day goes by without a "special," a box of candy, or flowers from the "one big interest." We wish you all kinds of happiness, Crossie, and hope that the orange blossoms will be more than lovely in Florida!

HELEN CUNNINGHAM

She has a Kitty, a smooth, brown Kitty
His fur is soft as silk,
But this old Kitty, this horrid old Kitty
Won't drink cream or milk,
He won't eat fish,
He won't catch mice,
But Helen thinks he's awfully nice,
And where e'er we go, we hear this note,
"Take care of Kitty—my only fur coat."

ELEANOR CURRAN

There are some people who take Home Ec for a profession and some who take it as a hopeful resort, but Eleanor admits that she is taking it for a purpose. One of the interesting things that we learned in Soc was Eleanor's poise. But don't be daunted by that formality, for we learned that at a certain theatre party when she left off that dignity Eleanor was the life of the party.

She is one of those happy individuals who do things well, and her capabilities and pep are well known. "Cush" is especially right there when it comes to the "News."

EDITH DAVIS

"Ede"

Edith, the girl with the perfect marcel. For four years Ede has borne the responsibility of adding those artistic flourishes which have always helped the maiden efforts of the musical and dramatic genius of '26 to "get across." "Fr' instance"—Sophomore Luncheon, Sophomore Follies, etc.—ad finitum. Furthermore, despite the fact that we always turn to her in our search for bright ideas, Ede has never contracted that common habit of ducking down the back stairs to escape the chairmen of '26's entertainment committees. She meets them head on, and if she has the time, she does it.

MARJORIE DILL

"Marj"

Quizzes, exams, and A grades cause Marjorie no undue excitement, and even lost pocketbooks and misplaced articles can't ruffle her temper. ## LILLIAN ERICKSON

"Billie"

To think of Lillian is to think of conscientiousness. One may recall the "two blue innocent eyes" and golden hair that make the distracting total which has sometimes won Billie the nickname of "Baby Doll," but we always know that, whatever she is doing, nobody else would take half the pains Billie does. Perhaps that is the reason she is able with such unruffled calm to speak when occasion demands—be it classroom, Sophomore Luncheon, or the never-to-be-sufficiently-maligned Chemistry Journals.

A strong advocate of mange cure. Another Tennyson who sees airplanes among the skies, an initiator and staunch supporter of a movement for non-collapsible chairs in the refectory, Maggie has made her reputation at Simmons. A good nature, a calm manner, a pleasing personality, and a clever wit—that's Maggie. Her one regret is that she never realized till the old cat died that she should have mashed his peas.

When we think of Betty, we have a picture of a quick, bob-haired young lady dodging in and out and between the tables of the dining-room with her loaded tray balanced at the proper angle. Again, we remember many lively discussions conducted in the subterranean regions of the laundry at which the fate of the college and country was settled to Betty's and our entire satisfaction. The supreme example, however, of her fluency as a conversationalist was the time when she kept two telephone lines dangling simultaneously.

Divinely fair, divinely tall. Truly, a daughter of the Gods! Coming from "Pitt" as a Junior transfer, she jammed on the Studebaker brakes before 300 The Fenway, and in a poised, efficient manner, showed us how to conquer all the chemistries and biologies in the Science School. There are some girls in our class who know how to get things done on time—nay, even ahead of time. "Ollie" is one of them.

We are never exasperated with her because of this trait, however, because "Ollie" has never been known to commit the error of calling attention to the fact that while her theme is done, yours isn't. She helps you. Thereby giving additional proof of the fact that there isn't any justice.

Betsy is characteristically impatient with those less fortunate mortals who are forever bewailing the universal lack of time, for Betsy declares, "you can make time, if you want to." Consequently Betsy goes out week nights and week ends. Get 'Liz' Lockwood; she's good, and she'll do it." And such a heartless critic! Her candid declarations quite dismay most of our plastic collegians. Boston as well as her classmates assuredly appreciates her; were there not special rooms built for her in the new Metropolitan Theatre? "Mike"

She is not "a simple child," but she does reiterate that "we are twelve!" She is a sophisticated and modern young woman with a fine sense of the fitness of men, women, books and dress. As a conversationalist, she reigns alone. In capability and efficiency, she has few equals. Falling upstairs and down and in the middle of a smooth corridor, is her greatest accomplishment. Now, however, we have a greater problem—we cannot decide whether it is the joy of beholding "rosy-fingered dawn tint the purple hills", or that of feasting her soul on the music of the puffing, belching steam engine that has caused Hilda to desert the dorms. ## EUNICE ROSSMAN

"Rossie"

Did anyone ever see Eunice in a hurry? Yet she always gets there and has plenty of time to say a cheery word or lend a helping-hand to everyone. When it comes to athletics, Eunice is right there. Her slow motion vanishes and that basket ball or tennis ball goes to just the right spot at the right time.

MARION ROWELL

Just take a look at Marian's record. Versatile, isn't she? Yet we feel that she leans just a little more toward the journalistic side than any other. Her record on Press Board would certainly seem to indicate it, for to engineer that safely through a year takes journalistic and executive ability, as well as a great deal of tact. And from what we hear of journalism, tact is a very necessary factor. We feel pretty sure that Marian is one of those of whom we shall say, "I knew her when—!"

When you see a hilarious multitude doubled up with mirth, you're almost sure to find Liz in the center of it all—and as for rattling the ivories—there isn't anyone who can beat her. Then too, she is an actress. Will you ever forget her at the Sophomore Follies—those Baby Sister Blues? But Liz has a serious side as well and she's always right there to help you when you're in trouble. ## MARGARET SARGENT

"Margo"

You all know that old theory, "the smaller the body, the greater its energy." Well, Margo is no exception to this rule. She is a veritable dynamo of energy. She is always busy doing something and can always find time to do something else. Like a certain well-known insect, she is persistent and untiring, and hard to locate because of her smallness and agile celerity. Her activities range from news reporting to dietetics; her discussions from religion to free love, from H. G. Wells to Elinor Glynn. Her greatest ambition is to attain a height of 6 feet 3 and a corresponding leanness. Her greatest achievement thus far has been losing her fountain pen six times a day in as many different places.

"Dot"

Although Dot can be relied on to get things straight, there is one thing which seems to have stumped her. 'Twas told us by those who know that when the fire alarm shook her out of the realms of sleep, she opened her window, pulled down her shades and then rushed out into the hall sans shoes and sans valuables.

Four years of college life has not weakened Dot's morale. She still has the moral courage to stay up at night and study!

IDA SHACK

Ida, of the sunny smile and cheerful disposition, light of foot, nimble of wit, an authority on the correct pronunciation of the English language and the latest note from the Parisian couturiers—that such a paragon should come from Worcester almost passes our comprehension. She is fond of mice and midnight tea parties; has a sympathetic ear for all good stories; does not believe in the old adage, "neither a borrower nor a lender be," for she is most generous in lending her own wardrobe and gracious in borrowing others!

Ever since we have been in Mildred's typewriting class, we have had a sinister suspicion that she is responsible for the high standard set for it which we struggle vainly to attain. She has that rare trait of intellectual curiosity which enables her to bear her share of the responsibility of settling the ills of the universe. Unlike many theorists, Mildred takes cognizance of the practical side of life. Although nothing less than a fire drill rouses the rest of us, it is rumored that Mildred has made several nocturnal pilgrimages to the South door. Sally is one of the people in the class whose character tempts the writer to employ the well-known yearbook style designated as "soft soap" by the victim's enemies, and as "simple justice" by her friends. Breathless and cheeks flaming, this small person rushes in all smiles. "Had you been waiting long? It poured and we had two flat tires. I forgot the keys, so I had to disconnect the distributor. ### HAIGOUHY ZOVICKIAN

The proverbial little bird told us that Haigouhy has a rare quality, a thirst for knowledge of all the "ologies." Those of us whose shining lights were nearly extinguished Freshman year by said science courses can fully appreciate what this means.

This same little bird informed us that Haigouhy has another attribute, also uncommon among us, that of an orderly mind.

In addition, she cannot be classed in that large species found in all dormitories, and earmarked by its habit of playing the Victrola at 7 a. m. on Sunday, for she is very thoughtful of others.

Student Government

President . . . . .	VIDA BUIST
Vice-President . . . . .	ALBERTINE PARKER
Treasurer . . . . .	MILDRED BARNEY
Senior Representative and Chairman of Activities . . . . .	MARY BEATTY
Senior Representative . . . . .	HOPE COOK
Junior Representative and Secretary . . . . .	GERTRUDE BANCROFT

Freshman Representatives,	ELEANOR SCHUYLER, PLACIDIA WHITE

We believe in Student Government here at Simmons, and because we believe in it we want to see it grow and succeed. If student Government is to reach the fullest and best usefulness, then let each Simmons girl feel a sense of responsibility in regard to its affairs and a willingness to devote time and thought to its problems.

Opportunity for the individual to express opinions, make suggestions, or request definite action to be taken by Student Government, is provided in three important parts of our system: first, the class representatives on Student Government Council; second, the group meetings; and third, the newly adopted open meetings. Every one has a chance to make known what she wants done or thinks ought to be done. It is a chance worth taking.

We have many demands upon our time; it sometimes seems impossible to attend to them all—but if we say we are too busy to take an active interest in Student Government, are we not really saying that we are too busy to attend to an essential phase of college life? It would seem very much worth while for each Simmons girl to prepare herself for future citizenship by showing a vital, active interest in Student Government while she is in college.

Dormitory Committee

Chairman . . . . . ALBERTINE PARKER

Secretary . . . . . DOROTHY WARBASSE

Since the creation of our new Judicial Board, Dormitory Committee has become purely a legislative body. It is composed of the Freshmen House Seniors and the House Chairmen.

The Committee has devoted itself to testing the soundness of the rules in order to evolve a set of regulations which will more accurately fit the changing conditions of dormitory life.

This board acts as a connecting link between the student body and the Student Government Council, thereby bringing the girls into closer contact with the functions of this body.

Before any of the recommendations of the Student Committees can become laws, they must be approved by the Student Government Conference Committee. This Committee is composed of four members of the Faculty and three students. To maintain the balance of power between the Faculty and students the Chairman exercises her right to vote only in the event of a tie.

By giving Student Government the benefit of their greater experience and more mature opinions, the members of this Committee act as a check upon our youthful eagerness to keep abreast of the times.

This year there has been a merging of the old Honor Board and the judicial powers of the Dormitory Committee into what is known as the Judicial Board, which is composed of nine members. The Chairman is a Senior chosen by the student body. The other representatives are the four class presidents, a Junior and a Sophomore from Student Council, and the President and Vice-President of Student Government, ex officio.

The Board acts on all cases, whether academic or dormitory, and passes its recommendations to the Conference Committee or to the Administrative Board.

It is hoped that this standardization of the Judicial powers of Student Government will create greater interest in the problems of Student Government.

The Academy

President . . . . .	LOUISE ALDRICH
Secretary-Treasurer . . . . .	DOROTHY WEST

The Academy of 1926 numbers thirteen undergraduate members—another proof that thirteen is a lucky number, for our fellowship this year has proved both a pleasure and a benefit. We are greatly indebted to the enthusiastic alumnae who have so generously given their encouragement and guidance throughout the year. From their longer experience they have interpreted to us the true meaning of the Academy. We are particularly fortunate in our nine Honorary Members who, through their loyal support, have been a constant source of inspiration. The Academy this year was very glad to receive Dean Mesick as an Honorary Member.

As an evidence of the year's activity, several books have been added to the collection previously placed in the college library by the Academy. Five of these volumes are the gift of Miss Morse, one of our most helpful and esteemed Honorary Members.

It has been our aim this year to bring the ideals of Academy before the college as a whole, in the endeavor to inspire a more general appreciation of classical subjects. In a college such as Simmons, where the tendency is to emphasize technical subjects only, a society of this kind fills a definite need. The ideal of Academy finds expression in its symbol, the torch of learning. It is the special duty and privilege of those who bear the symbol to keep the torch in constant flame at Simmons.

Y. W. has striven this year to make the Association one that will attract a greater number of students. Its purpose was to encourage progressive thinking in religion and ethics, and in the political problems that influence our social surroundings; to expand the coöperation between the dormitory and commuting students so that our College will be more unified; to work constructively to make the Maqua Conference better than it has been before; and to do all in its power to show the true worth of Simmons, as well as to keep up the Standards of the college life.

In November, Dr. Calkins gave a series of lectures that were along religious and ethical lines. Following out definitely one of the year's objectives, were the December meeting on the World Court and the Series in February touching social and industrial problems. As usual, there were the Thanksgiving Baskets, the inspiring Christmas Vespers, under the auspices of the Freshman Commission. Several meetings also were devoted to the cause of Maqua.

If Y. W. has succeeded in any way, no matter how small, to fulfill its hopes and aims, the year may well be called a success.

Ellen Richards Club

President . . . . .	LOUISE FOERING
Secretary-Treasurer . . . . .	TYYNE LAKE

The Ellen Richards Club was founded in 1920 for the purpose of stimulating interest in science and promoting good fellowship among members. It was felt that the name of the pioneer woman scientist of America would be a constant source of inspiration and always symbolize the ideals and aims of the organization. The broad range of her interests and activities which included pioneer work in the chemistry of sanitary water analysis, public health work as well as her association with the Home Economics movement for which she is perhaps more popularly known, offers ample opportunity in varied fields of activities for us who aspire to follow her.

The membership includes Junior and Seniors in the School of Science and students from other schools majoring in Chemistry, Biology or Physics. The faculty of the science departments are included as honorary members.

Our opening function in the fall was a picnic. On this occasion our chief delight lay in the discovery of a hitherto unsuspected talent for harmonizing songs on the part of members of the faculty. Our more formal meetings, at which interested outsiders are always welcome, have been addressed by speakers who discussed their scientific researches and investigations.

Secretary-Treasurer . . . . .	MARY RHODES '28

"The Spirit of Youth in the Life of the Church is the hope of the World," and may this ever be the inspiration for the perpetual growth of the Simmons Unitarian Club. We do not limit our membership to Unitarians alone; we cordially welcome any of the girls who are interested in our informal gatherings and our practical discussions. We feel that in the mad pursuit for academic and technical knowledge, the deeper and more serious problems of life which inevitably confront youth are momentarily forgotten. Therefore, to keep these problems before us, wiser and more experienced men and women address us at frequent intervals and lead us in our intimate group talks. Our purpose is to create and stimulate a warmer fellowship among our college friends, so that when we go out into the world we may carry with us this inspiration.

The regular weekly meeting of the Christian Science Society has been held every Thursday afternoon in Students' Room. These meetings take the form of testimonial meetings, and the graduates who have become associate members have joined with us in making them very inspiring to all who came. There have also been various informal social events, such as teas, and trips to various places of particular interest to the members. One lecture has been given by a member of the Board of Lectureship of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, Massachusetts.

The meetings are not confined to members of the Christian Science church alone and a cordial welcome is extended to faculty as well as students. The desire of the Society is to live up to its purpose of bringing together the Christian Scientists of the college, and of increasing friendship with other college organizations.

Newman Club at Simmons is one of the many Catholic clubs active in all the non-Catholic colleges. It belongs to the National organization, the Federation of College Catholic Clubs. Its purpose is to promote religious, intellectual and social activities among the students and colleges.

The clubs around Boston are at Wellesley, Simmons, Technology, Smith, Boston University, Tufts, Emerson and Dartmouth. These clubs all co-operate in holding meetings, dances, communion breakfasts and other similar activities.

The Simmons Newman Club is one of the strongest of these organizations and is looked upon as one of the most successful in carrying out the ideals and policies of its founder, Cardinal Newman.

The Menorah at Simmons College is composed of Jewish Students who feel the need of arousing greater consciousness of Judaism. Many well-known lecturers who talked on subjects related to Judaism were heard during the academic year. Joint meetings were held with the various Menorah organizations of Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Boston University at which the students took part in interesting discussions and debates. Menorah aids the student not only to gain clearer insight in religious subjects, but helps her to realize the worth of loyalty and love toward her fellow students and her College.

The best things, it is said, grow on you, like olives and poetry. Be that as it may, the interests of the different classes of Simmons are far from alike, and it is in consideration of this fact that we have noted their words in regard to the Review. What do they say of it?

The Freshman: They were piled up on the hall table today, and anybody could take one. Imagine getting something free in college. Once in a while there is a story in it.

The Sophomore: Corking piece in the Anvil about light rules. Guess I'll have to register a little kick of my own some day.

The Junior: My roommate had an article in the Review. I always thought it was dreadfully high-brow, but if she gets something printed, I'll make a try of my own.

The Senior: I like that piece of Dot's in the Review this month. She had a real idea.

As announced in the editorial column of the first issue of the News last October, the aim of the editor and staff this year was to make our college weekly "more worth-while, more readable and more enjoyable." The great increase in the popularity of the paper and the rapidity with which subscriptions have increased, prove their efforts have not been in vain.

The paper has faithfully reproduced the varied news of a busy college life in respect to parties and dances; the activities of various clubs and organizations; and class news. The "Book Review" column has attracted great interest by giving a weekly review of some one of the new books, and the "Periscope" has been a constant reminder of world-interests.

May the laudable efforts of this year's staff for "pep," vitality and enthusiasm tend to make the "Simmons News" one of the leading influences of the college life.

All year the members of the Board listed above have labored to assemble the various parts which compose Mic. The Business Manager has done her best to extract all your money and the advertising squad has worn out much shoe leather and the tempers of many advertising managers in their struggle to capture ads. In addition, we, speaking editorially, have lost all our friends by the sure method of asking them to type as well as to write for us.

Now, however, it is done. We that have done it are making haste to withdraw from the public eye before the storm breaks.

Did you ever have someone innocently ask you whether Simmons is a cooking school, or a commercial college, or what State it is in? Did it make you feel "all het up," and call forth a fervent wish that the newspapers or somebody would tell the world that Simmons is a bonifide college and very much alive?

The Press Board has been organized expressly to correct this situation—to get into the papers as much publicity for Simmons as they will take, and at the same time to keep out the frivolous, inconsequential material that adds nothing to the prestige of a college.

This is a new enterprise at Simmons, and the work before the board is big and fascinating—the constant watch for news, the chase for your man (the photographer), a race downtown before the paper goes to print, and the article with its satisfying caption greeting your eager eyes the next morning. Much of our success has been due to Mr. Sutcliffe, who has secured for us the administration and faculty news, helped us over our mistakes, and has encouraged and advised about our plans for a stronger, broader organization. A word of appreciation is also due to Ye Craftsman Studio for the generous and kindly aid freely extended to all Press Board members.

There are broad fields ahead for the Press Board. The Boston papers are well-cared for. Through the Associated Press much material is relayed to papers in other parts of the country, but there is now need for an active body of reporters for out-of-town papers—the big State papers that cover the larger towns within their States. These papers pay very little for copy, but they can give to Simmons a publicity that is most desirable.

The field of opportunities ahead is great and alluring, and we hope that this year will be but a phase in a long and useful career of service to our college.

Student Forum

Chairman—ETHYL MARSHALL

Student Forum is a consolidation of the Civic League and Current Events of former years. It is the aim of this body to build up a spirit of intelligent concern about the national and international topics of the day, as well as Civic problems. In order to keep the student body informed on questions of science, politics and literature, popular speakers have been provided in the various dormitories throughout the year.

This year the group fostered a drive to help out the Orphans in the Near East, an entirely new enterprise for Student Forum.

The real support and interest which students have given to this body indicates that the Forum's place is secure among the Student Organizations.

The Household Economics Club is in its third year and is affiliated with both the National and New England Home Economics Clubs.

Membership in our organization is made up of the Instructor and Special Students in the Household Economics School as well as Juniors and Seniors taking the course.

The Juniors and Seniors have all been given a chance, during the year, to work on the several committees, which have been earning money for the club by analyzing candy and cakes, and serving teas for different organizations in the college. The money so earned is our only means of support since there are no club dues.

Miss Blood's tea in the new Practice House was very delightful and gave us all an opportunity to see some of the things that the fortunate girls in the Practice House are doing.

Now that we have Pilgrim House, we hope to have more of our meetings (social ones at least) over there.

Dramatics has added several new laurel leaves to its crown of glory this year. In the early fall, previous to the production of Sheridan's "The School for Scandal," Mr. Walter Prichard Eaton spoke on the comedy of manners.

On the night of the Christmas dinner, members of the new honorary society of Dramatics, the "Mummers," entertained the gay diners with a presentation of the old Christmas story in pantomime.

During the second term Mrs. Guy Currier of the Women's Council gave the "Mummers" a tea at her home on Commonwealth Avenue.

The great advance of the Association, however, was the acquisition of some new scenery, which created such a pleasant surprise when "The Romantic Age" was presented.

February 13 proved a lucky evening for '28 because the cast of the Sophomore play received the prize in the three one-act-play contest. This does not mean that the Freshmen and Juniors deserved no praise. The freshmen interpreted their parts very well and the contrast between the bluff fathers and the remantic lovers was well brought out.

Despite the lack of action in their play, the Juniors were very successful in sustaining the interest of the audience.

Glee Club

Glee Club this year has over seventy members. In September the director, Mr. Winter, conducted tryouts for the benefit of those musically inclined. Each aspirant was then graded on her voice quality and facility in sight reading, and the new members were admitted on the basis of these grades.

There has been a rehearsal once a week throughout the year at which attendance is required. Here also the no-cut system reigns supreme, and those delinquents who cut more than once a term without sufficient reason, are automatically dropped. (Note: The vagaries of artistic temperament being no excuse.)

Besides the annual concerts, the Glee Club furnishes the choir at Assembly, Christmas vespers, Baccalaureate and Commencement.

“Give me ‘A’ please.” Mandolin Club is the one generous organization in College which will distribute A’s for the asking.

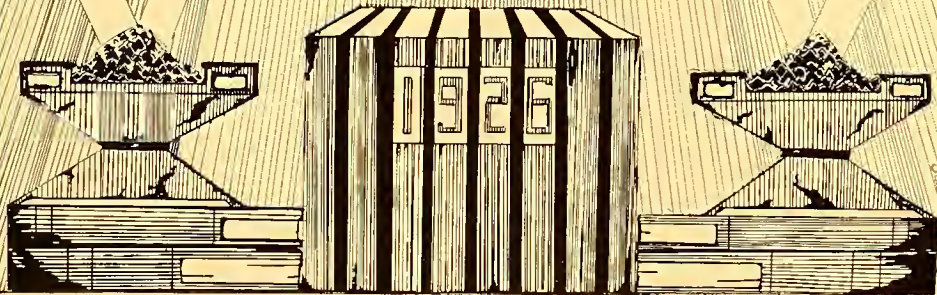

Under the guidance of Mr. Rice, the Club has faithfully rehearsed every Thursday in the struggle to blend the blatant sounds of the various instruments into the harmony which was achieved by the time of the mid-winter concerts.

Although Simmons still holds all its games either between the four walls of the gym or in the privacy of the well-known back yard, said association is a good illustration of the law of evolution. Just glance over the pages of the previous Mics if you want concrete proof of how rapidly this lively association has grown since ye goode olde days in 1910!

Nowadays S. A. A. has acquired a spirit of thorough-going sportsmanship which characterizes everything it does. The class hockey teams tore around the backyard all fall during practice with much pep and enthusiasm. Basketball is no longer the mild exercise it used to be when each player could remain fixed in her own little chalked space and watch the game like any other spectator. The modern B. B. team at Simmons tears in a mad gallop all over the gym in a manner similiar to any respectable masculine five. Furthermore, a new sport has been added to the list. In addition to hockey, basketball, track and life saving, S. A. A. now boasts an archery team. Finally, we point with pride to our twenty odd limping horseback riders.

Have you ever had a roommate or a kind friend taking Life Saving? Did she ever, in a friendly way, try to show you how to breathe rhythmically? In other words, did you ever get resuscitated? If you haven't, offer yourself up on the altar the very next time you get a chance. You'll be in for the best reducing exercise you've found yet—and a good laugh, too—if you manage to survive it.

Resuscitation isn't the only thing that those aspiring to be Senior Life Savers learn. They learn how to approach a drowning person, break every known death grip and then to carry him in.

If you haven't been out for Life Saving as yet in your college career, come next year. If you are athletic, here's another one-third of a point towards your Simmons "S." Don't forget the meet every year in competition for that good-looking shield the Boston Humane Society gave us. 1925 has won it for two years and they have now tactfully left the field of competition by graduating. That means that there's an equal chance for everybody.

YE SUNDIALE

“When You and I Were Very Young”

Do you remember how we frolicked away one entire Saturday afternoon in the Refectory with no thought of anything except making a tremendous noise and gorging ourselves with ice cream, peanuts and lollypops? Each one of us surely has some vivid picture and memory of this burst of '26 into the college limelight. That stiff and solemn roommate did look such a sight in short socks and a waist-lined dress where a waist-line just shouldn't be! Most of us reverted to the ten-year type with pigtailed and smeared lollypops, and some were rolled about in baby carriages. Yes—those were the good old Freshman days. Don't you wish we were frolicking again?

Ghost Walk

In the days of yore, when we were Sophs, Ghost Walk was still a grand old scrap! Terrible tales reached us of helpless Sophs who had been tied up in dark closets. Going to dinner became an exciting adventure for we expected that a clammy hand of some Junior would reach out from behind an ash barrel to capture us.

Excitement ran high one evening and class history was made when a certain tall, dark and spindly Soph gave a famous bit of pithy advice to an excited Junior poised on the edge of Mrs. Dittmer's roof!

Then came the climax. At the appointed hour, we rushed madly out our back doors, and regardless of the portions of our best hose which we left dangling from various barbed wire fences, we bolted to the Cypress car barns and to victory!

Sophomore Luncheon

In February, 1924, we made our first formal appearance as members of Simmons. There was breathless excitement in South Hall as we all got our rings and then went in to the Sophomore luncheon wearing the gleaming new emblems of our matriculation. There could not have been a more fitting entertainment for the occasion than our luncheon with its wealth of charming decoration, inspiring speeches, and delicious food. Then there was the "illuminated mystery"—those wise little owls blinking at us from the edge of the rose-lighted platter. That day we added one more delightful memory to our gallery of college treasures.

Sophomore May Day

Mixed in with our pleasant reminiscences of May Day, such as the Strawberry short cake and the beauty of the King and Queen and all their handsome train, are certain other poignant memories. We ask, Hast forgotten the chilly morning breezes which chased one another through our flowing white cheese cloth robes? Dost also remember the sharp gravel walk and the clammy dew on the grass which our quivering feet had to endure while we draped ourselves among those three sickly pines from Penn the Florist, which were designated by the cast at "this drear wood?"

Lest we forget!

The Weddings of '26

1924-26

The most vivid and outstanding recollection we have of this first of our weddings was the picturesque beauty of the bride and groom. Libby Sweet was tall, dark and handsome—Marion was exquisite and blushing. In reality they were just as a society column says all such couples are.

1926-28

On this occasion '26 made some innovations. The farcical aspects of the ceremony were removed and the spirit of sister-class loyalty and palship were emphasied. The solemnity of the minister's quaking voice and the realistic and complete bridal party gave an impressive touch of seriousness. Just as the guests began to feel the full import of this second of life's "three great crises," Vi Marr and Cushy relieved the strain by their impersonation of Ye good Olde Hick relatives.

Senior Housewarming

Senior Housewarming—pandemonium in North Hall basement—Apaches slithering around; dirty little street urchins scrapping with everyone near them; starving Armenians behaving in a most unfamished fashion; messy, old tramps lolling about—everyone shrieking and yelling at the top of their lungs. An onlooker would have thought it the Psychopathic Hospital turned loose, not the dignified Seniors of the noble class of '26.

When the noise had somewhat subsided, a pantomime entitled "Pokyhantus" was staged. The actors did their best. It was not their fault if the property men forgot their duties and the big chief had to hiss "sotto voce" backstage, "The bucket! Where's my bucket?" The appreciative audience quite enjoyed such little mishaps.

After the play, we had several games and races. Lollipops were passed around to revive drooping spirits and urge the contestants on to victory. Then all the lights were put out and we sat in total darkness clutching each other, while Snap Morrill read us a most fearsome ghost story by the light of a flickering candle.

Doughnuts and cider heralded our return from the world of spooks and we gorged blissfully, unaware of the sticky Fate awaiting us. A candy-pull completed the evening's entertainment, and very nearly completed us!

Ye Xmas Dinner

*Long, dark tables
Gleam warmly
In the soft, fluttering candle-glow.*

*Great, gray steins,
Clinking—laughter.
Then the joys of old Christmas cheer the air.*

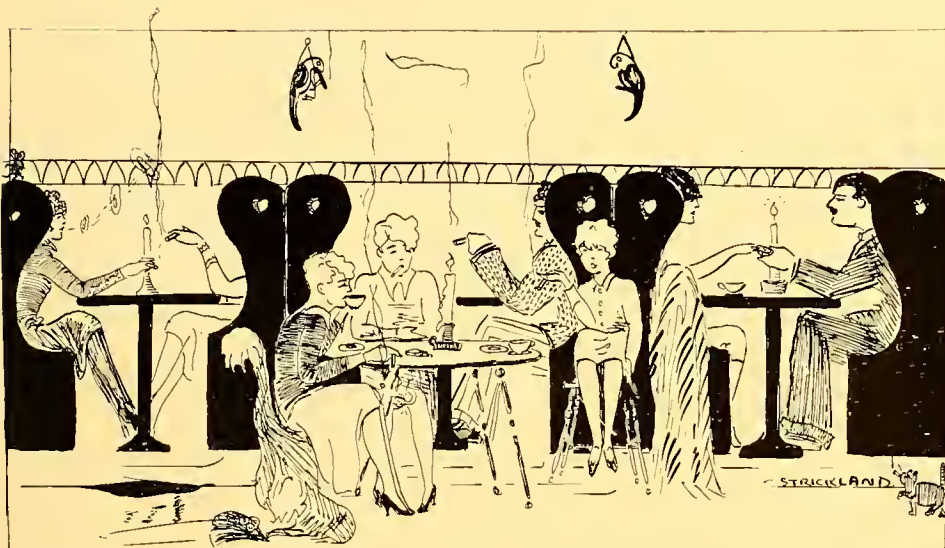

*Lost dignities
And slippers,
The jesters dash tinkling about.*

*We are happy—
The evening closes
On our festival as of yore.*

The Simmons Special

Bryn Mawr may have her smoking rooms, Wellesley and Smith may have their shady walks, but Simmons has "the other side of Mass. Ave.!"

JUNIOR PROM

Junior Prom

Since the imminence of graduation has imbued us with the desire to catch a few germs of that well-known Simmons disease—efficiency—we have subjected Junior Prom to a searching analysis. This long and careful study of the matter revealed the fact that this high festival could be divided into three stages. This we have done, as well as listed the elements of each stage as follows:

(ANTICIPATION)

Stage 1. (Beginning Jan. 1 and lasting until 6:30 P. M., May 15.)

- 1 Initial hash party to discuss possible partners.
- 2 3 or 4 selected according to these qualifications:
  - 1 dancing propensities
  - 2 looks
  - 3 line
  - 4 height
  - 5 weight
- 3 Invitation sent to best of this approved group.
4. Refusal received.
- 5 Commotion and consultation.
- 6 Another bid launched.
- 7 More negative replies.
- 8 Importation of the roommate's brother.
- 9 Selection of prom dress. (This process also attended by much commotion.)
- 10 Final caucus to discuss dress, place of dinner and the virtues of partner.

Stage 2 (Participation)

- 1 Joyful entrance into a completely disguised Refectory.
- 2 Consumption of the delicacies of the menu as formal smiles and stiff postures gradually melt into genial hilarity.
- 3 The triumphal entrance into the Somerset which is followed by a processional down the receiving line.
- 4 Much gliding and shuffling about to the soft syncopations emitted by the orchestra.
- 5 Senior serenade.
- 6 The owl of '26 blinks his approval of the throng below him.
- 7 Scattering to house parties here, there and everywhere.

Stage 3 (Post Mortem)

- 1 Accentuated Monday morning blues.
- 2 Monday P. M. congregations at which the following items are thoroughly and heatedly discussed, pro and con:
  - 1 Everybody's man.
  - 2 Everybody's clothes.
  - 3 The details of the various house parties.

Student Government Party - 1925

The summer sun was setting as we met, all in our white, at the colonnade, to enjoy for the last time a college party with the seniors of 1925. It was a solemn hour when those members of '25 conferred upon us the duties which they had performed so capably and worthily during the year, and also when President Lefavour, after his invaluable speech of advice and encouragement, announced that Miss Mesick was to be the full-fledged Dean of Simmons.

At the lobster salad supper we all enjoyed the light-hearted informality of eating on the lawn, and later we gathered again at the colonnade for the last step-singing with '25. As the seniors marched away that evening, under the rustling elms, we hoped that we might be as successful as they had been.

Our Ideas of Class

(What we learned at College.)

How to blow smoke rings.

How to think nothing, know nothing, write nothing for three books, and then get A.

How to keep the peace while dating with the roommate's man.

How to elect deaf, dumb and blind house chairmen.

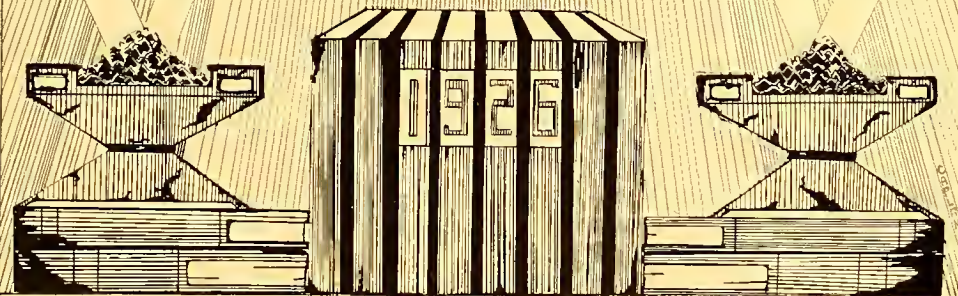

How to explain the unexplainable coherently.

How to adjust one's manners, morals and modes of speech to fit those of any group, whether it be instructors, authorities, enemies or confreres in crime.

How to appear "S S and G" although—

How to maintain a calm exterior after having been informed in stentorian voice, "Entrance to second balcony in the alley."

SCENE I

SETTING: The scene is laid in Suite No. 215 South Hall, this suite being over the Colonnade and on the second floor.

When the curtain rises, it is 4:30 P. M. Prettie Smooth and Dizzy Bit, the proprietors of said suite, are engaged in the customary afternoon occupation. Dizzy is eating a brownie and Prettie is writing letters, either to her father or her friends at Dartmouth, depending on the state of her finances.

A knock is heard on the door and Soapy Breeze breezes in waving a piece of paper.

SOAPY BREEZE: Listen to this, ladies. Gather round while I read you the latest idiosyncrasy of Student Government.

DIZZY: Don't tell me they have banned second balcony seats at the Follies?

SOAPY: No, much worse. Listen. (Mounting a chair, Soapy reads in a loud and mock-heroine voice as follows:)

Inasmuch as we have learned, through the irresistible channel of rumor, that someone heard that a friend of hers saw a Harvard student eating a life saver at a recent Union party, and without stating the sinister implications of such an indiscreet action, we hereby decree that no Simmons student shall endanger the reputation of the college by being seen at any Harvard festivity henceforth and forever more.

(This step was taken only after serious deliberation, namely: two caucuses and three conventions.)

PRETTIE: So that's why there were three Judicial Board meetings last week!

DIZZIE: Well, I'm relieved. I knew we must be on the eve of some great calamity when we got a cut in Shorthand-Typewriting last Wednesday!

Enter Notso Hot

NOTSO HOT: What do you think of the new ban on Harvard? Do you suppose it includes football games and the Glee Club Concerts?

DIZZIE: Probably, and very likely all the debates as well.

SOAPY: What makes this all the more interesting is the big party over at the Union tonight.

PRETTY: Wonder if anyone will have the nerve to go!

(Cowbell rings. Falsetto voice from below): "Miss Hot, telephone."

NOTSO: Oh, all right! (Exit Notso on the run.)

DIZZIE: She gives me a pain! All she does is rave about her men. Lucky for Apollo he didn't live in these days of great competition.

PRETTIE: I agree with you. She certainly can make mountains out of molehills!

SOAPY: I never got such a shock as when I saw that Bill Charleston she's been raving about for the past month!

Enter Notso

NOTSO: I'm all agog! That was Bill Charleston and I'm going to the theatre with him tonight.

GIRLS: Where?

NOTSO: The Copley.

SOAPY: Cute enough! You go out all the time, old dear! Is Bill that good-looking boy I saw you with last Friday?

NOTSO: Yes.

SOAPY: Bet he goes around with a snappy crowd. Why don't you get him to drag over some of his friends some night?

NOTSO: Perhaps. Needs must get into the glad rags. (Exit Notso.)

DIZZIE: Notso certainly has improved since Freshman year. It did her good to diet. She's almost down to normal now.

PRETTIE: Just what do men see in her, though? I don't think her beauty is absolutely startling.

SOAPY: Oh, well—I can use my imagination! (Cowbell rings again. Once more the falsetto voice wavers forth): "Miss Fonda Food?"

FONDA FOOD: What is it?

(Voice from below): Veal loaf, creamed corn, mashed potatoes and jello!

FONDA FOOD: Thanks. Guess I'll eat out tonight!

(Again the cowbell. Soapy rushes out). Here come the pickles! What is it?

(Quavering voice): Miss Oughttabe Good, telephone!

DIZZIE: There goes one cause of this new ban. It probably doesn't worry her, though. All her men go to B. U.

PRETTIE: Personally, I don't see where she gets her sanctimonious air. As I remember, she wasn't so very angelic last year!

SOAPY: Must needs find out where she's stepping. (Goes into hall and bellows): Oughttabe, where you going?

OUGHTTABE: To symphony!

SOAPY: Symphony it is! Well, guess I'll run up to the corner with my laundry. Be back in five minutes if I get any phone calls. (Exit Soapy.)

(Dizzie and Prettie are now left alone.)

PRETTIE: Dizzie, this is a sad catastrophe. Why on earth should Student Government get a conscience stroke just now? I want to go to that Union party tonight.

DIZZIE: So do I! Furthermore, I'm going.

PRETTIE: Noble sentiment! But just how do you think we can work it? Neither one of us can get any more specials this week and I refuse to come home at 12:00.

DIZZIE: This is a problem. Just give me time.

PRETTIE: An inspiration! (Gets up and rushes to window over colonnade.) Come here! We can swipe the ladder out of the cellar after Kelly falls asleep over the radio and then we can climb in this way.

DIZZIE: Bright girl! Too bad you couldn't give Academy a little time!

(Curtain)

End of Scene I

SCENE II

(Same as Scene I except that it is 3:00 A. M. A grating noise is heard on the colonnade, then whispers.)

FEMININE VOICE: Hold the ladder steady, Joe.

MASCULINE VOICE: All right, I've got it. For heaven's sake don't lose your balance! (Steps on top of the colonnade.)

MASCULINE VOICE (From below): Next!

(Another person steps on colonnade.)

FEMININE VOICE: We're all right. Thanks. Better put the ladder over by the men's dorm. Had an awfully good time.

MASCULINE VOICE: Call you up the first of the week. Good-night. (Window opens cautiously and Dizzie Bit and Prettie Smooth enter the room and get undressed.)

DIZZIE BIT: Have a good time, Prettie?

PRETTIE: Yes, ma'am. Did you see our friend Oughttabe? She looked so upset when she saw me that I pretended not to see her.

(Voice from below. Dizzie and Prettie go to the window and look out.)

DIZZIE: Ye gods! It's Oughttabe! Better duck into bed quick.

(They tumble into bed and pretend sleep. Squeaks as before, then Oughttabe's voice): Thanks, Jack. Better put that ladder back where we found it. Here's hoping I don't wake up Prettie and Dizzie. It was darned lucky for me they didn't see me at the Union. Good night.

MALE VOICE: Good night. I'll call you up tomorrow to see if all's well.

(Just as Oughttabe steps on Dizzie's bed Dizzie sits up.) Well, Oughttabe! What's this?

(Loud crash outside. Oughttabe looks out): Heavens, he dropped the ladder! (Shrieks from the occupant of the room on the ground floor.)

DIZZIE: My gosh! He woke up Lucy Groundfloor!

PRETTIE: Here comes Miss Goodsport! Duck into that closet, Oughttabe. If she catches you here, you're done for! (Oughttabe scrambles into the closet, the others duck into bed.)

(Enter Miss Goodsport who looks around anxiously.)

DIZZIE (sleepily): What's the matter?

MISS GOODSPORT: Nothing. Good night girls. (Exit.)

(Oughttabe comes out of the closet and sinks down on the bed.) Ye gods! What an escape!

PRETTIE: You better get upstairs, Oughttabe. Remember what Miss Goodsport did last time we had a midnight scare.

DIZZIE: Wait a minute. You can't go parading around the halls in your evening dress. Put my kimona on over it.

OUGHTTABE: Thanks. Wish me luck. (Exit in haste.)

(Prettie and Dizzie climb back into bed.)

DIZZIE: I hope she's safe. Well, wake me up in the A. M. for breakfast. But if you dare haul me out before 7:55 I'll kill you. 'Night!

PRETTIE: 'Night.

(Silence, then the clump, clump, clump of the night watchman's footsteps is heard as he comes up the stairs)

(Curtain)

SCENE III.

(Same as before. It is 4:00 P. M. of the following day. Dizzie Bit and Prettie Smooth are talking to Notso Hot and Soapy Breeze about the scare of the night before.)

NOTSO: Well, I've been tracking this mystery all day and I can't find any explanation which will account for all the details of last night's episode.

SOAPY: I've been thinking too and I'm sure I have the true dope.

ALL: Spill it, Soapy, quick.

DIZZIE: I'm awfully intrigued about the whole thing, aren't you Prettie?

PRETTIE: Yes, especially since it happened outside our window.

SOAPY: I'm sure there was a man hiding in the trunk room all day who was planning to steal fur coats. I imagine that he carried a trunk upstairs to put them in, and while he was in Dizzie's room, he got scared and jumped off the colonnade.

NOTSO: But there wasn't any trunk found, and anyway, wouldn't he have hurt himself? I think that Miss Sycamore's theory is the best one. She thinks that some maniac escaped from the Psychopathic, walked in there and was prowling around the hall when he saw Eliza Woodlock coming along in those red pajamas. That reminded him that he was Nero and that Rome was burning. He dashed out on the colonnade and while he was dancing a jig, he fell off!

CHORUS: You forgot that the Psychopathic told Miss Sycamore when she phoned them that they didn't have any Neroes.

SOAPY: I've just had another idea, which you may like better. It's really very simple. It all happened at about the time the night watchman goes his rounds, didn't it?

NOTSO: Yes.

SOAPY: All right. He's awfully bashful and very considerate. Now suppose he should hear a girl coming down the hall behind him and at the same time see another one coming toward him. He wouldn't like to embarrass either one, would he?

CHORUS (Listening intently): No, go on!

SOAPY: Why wouldn't he dive into Dizzie's room, and when he saw her there, get so scared that he jumped off the colonnade?

PRETTIE AND DIZZIE: Bright idea, Soapy. Why don't you rush down and tell Miss Goodsport?

SOAPY: That's an idea! Come on Notso. I'll need support. (Exeunt.)

DIZZIE: All seems to be well so far. I hope Miss Goodsport clings to that last idea of Soapy's.

PRETTIE: That's all right, as long as she forgets to ask the night watchman about it.

DIZZIE: Oh well, what's the use of worrying. Let's think no more of it.

(Enter Oughttabe)

PRETTIE: Hello, Oughttabe, why so sad? Has anyone found out?

OUGHTTABE: (After closing door carefully) Girls, I've come to the conclusion that we ought to report ourselves about last night. I feel that while I had a momentary weakness last night, still I am fairly virtuous on the whole. I suppose I can't expect anyone else to develop the necessary noble attitude toward Student Government if I don't set them an example. I'm going to report myself and then resign my office.

PRETTIE: Oughttabe! Don't be foolish! Who could take your place? You're by far the best one on Council. It wouldn't be safe to let anyone else get a chance at it.

OUGHTTABE: Don't argue with me, girls. I'm determined to do it. The reason I'm telling you is that I think you ought to report yourselves too.

DIZZIE: What an idea! We aren't on Council! I thought we had a right to misbehave. Personally, I think my presence gave a higher tone to that party than it would have had otherwise. Report myself for reforming Harvard? Don't be silly!

OUGHTTABE: I'm sorry, but if you won't report yourselves, I'm afraid I shall have to. Noblesse oblige!

PRETTIE: That's what comes of the higher education! Why oh why did you take "Soc" Oughttabe?

OUGHTTABE: That's beside the point. Besides, "Soc's" required. Furthermore, I've been in to see the Dean already!

DIZZIE AND PRETTIE: (In chorus) You have!

OUGHTTABE: Yes, I have. She was busy though. She and Miss Clarabel Goodsport were discussing the escaped maniac theory.

DIZZIE: May I borrow some money for train fare, Prettie?

PRETTIE: I guess so. I suppose we might as well go out in a blaze of glory and do our bit for Student Government. We'll give a personal demonstration of how the Honor System should work. You can go up to see the Dean tomorrow, Dizzie, and tell her that you have concluded that despite your love for me you feel you owe a greater loyalty to your college and that you therefore find it your painful duty to report me. Then I'll go up the next hour with an ethereal expression of martyrdom on my noble countenance and do the same.

DIZZIE: (Sadly) In the words of the poet, Prettie, "Et tu Brute!" What chance has a poor criminal like me against two such reformed rascals?

(Loud gong rings. Voice of Miss Goodsport shouting.)

Dean's meeting at once in the living room.

(Curtain)

SCENE IV.

(Five minutes later. All South Hall is seated in a semi-circle facing Miss Sycamore, who is standing by the piano. Miss Goodsport is nearby.)

MISS SYCAMORE (Solemnly and slowly): Students, I have called this meeting to talk to you on a very serious subject. I believe that you all realize to what I refer. I want to discuss the unmentionable scandal of last night. I say scandal intentionally and I feel that all right-minded students will agree with me that it is extremely alarming to be awakened in the dead of night by a man jumping off the colonnade.

We have discovered what happened, thanks to the vigilance of Miss Goodsport. (Prettie, Dizzie and Oughttabe have queer feelings in their anatomical centers.) This is the truth of the matter. A thief was climbing up the colonnade when his foot slipped and he and the ladder crashed to the ground. (The aforementioned sensation leaves the persons of Dizzie, Prettie and Oughttabe who now radiate good cheer and understanding.)

That in itself is serious enough. What makes the incident more regrettable, however, is the fact that it was your fault. This affair is just another case, like the thumb tacks rule, where the administration must step in and bear the responsibility of your welfare.

The rule I refer to is this: You have all been repeatedly told to open your window from the top only so that people crawling in would be heard more easily.

Miss Goodsport reports that last night two girls failed to do so. This non-observance of the rules might have caused serious damage to the reputation of the college. Had the man gotten in, we might have needed the police to help Kelly extract him. That would have meant undesirable notoriety.

What parents then would have been willing to send their daughter to a college where the authorities were lax enough to allow girls to open their windows from the bottom? Please think this matter over seriously, girls. This is all. You may go now. (Exeunt.) By the way, Miss Good, didn't you have something important to tell me?

OUGHTTABE: No—oh, yes! I remember now. Will you please go to the Senior-Faculty Party with me?

(Curtain)

OUR TYRANNICAL FACULTY

DR. GAY (pausing in the midst of the roll-call): "By the way, Miss Clark, have you ever passed in that paper due about five weeks ago?"

MISS CLARK (firmly): "No."

DR. GAY (meekly): "Well, er—er."

DR. HARLEY (apologetically): "Would you object strenuously if I gave you a quiz next Thursday?"

CLASS (vociferously): "Yes."

DR. GOODELL (blushing deeply): "I wonder if you and Miss Zero would please not whisper so loudly, Miss Blank. The rest of the class can't hear me."

STUDENT: "Dr. Harris, do we have to pass our report slips in now or the day of the exam?"

VOICE OF STUDENT (from behind the distilling apparatus): "The day of the exam, of course."

DR. HARRIS (mildly): "Is that the voice of authority I hear?"

The Last Words of the Editors

*(With apologies to Vachel Lindsay and all those who have read
"The Congo")*

Mic Board met in a serious mood
(The outer world said with feet unstable)
Plotted and planned and pounded on the table,
Pounded on the table,
Beat their empty heads till their genius brewed,
Hard as they were able
Boom, Boom, Boom.
The classroom mutterings grew and grew.
Boomlay, boomlay, boomlay, boom!
We came to a decision, then we had a vision
So our heads weren't turned by their reveling derision
THEN WE SAW THE MIC BOOK, COMPLETE IN WHITE AND BLACK
READY FOR YE CLASSMATES IN A BLUE AND GOLDEN STACK.
Then around the sales-desk
A thousand cries
As ye weary classmates drowned their sighs
For the Mics were ready when the spring came along
And not brought by mailmen when summer was gone.
And "Mic" screamed the skeptics and the cynics in a crowd.
"Mic" screamed our worried-eyed, dignified guides,
"Where is the cause of all this battle?
"Scurry through the write-ups,
"Hunt for the slams!"
Rattle tattle rattle tattle
Bing!
Boomlay boomlay boomlay boom.
A harmless epic of the college year,
From the minds of the writers
To our classmates dear.

Never mind - maybe next year you'll feel like getting up early, and will keep me company.
Will wonders never cease? - (About 1899 W
I mean.)

Florence M. Gouky - Yours for shorthand and bridge!!!

Eleanor Hubbard - I shall never forget <sup>Albert</sup>
you and Bessie at Rye Beach that <sup>This is when</sup>
Sunday - we had a good time didn't we? I'm unwilling to forget we just say I want to be here next year, will you?
